

the philosopher immanuel kant walked exactly at the same time the others adjusted their watches after him so says the legend also a legend the fact that immanuel kant would not have known that his german city would be russian he knew, but didn't say or write because he died - clairvoyants die before darkening the minds of others immanuel kant never wrote science fiction - it's another legend anyone who sees his portrait realizes he was an alien - there is no conspiracy theory, the only one that deserves its name is the one who says there are no conspiracies he was among us and we did not know him though his name was in broad daylight:
"god is with us on the edge" others have this name too- just it they also have degrees - just it only one was immanuel kant who we know for sure was elegantly dressed and had digestive disturbances - ah, surely he was a man like all of us so did george washington, despite being the uptight president he had only one tooth left no one did save oneself from the cross it carried, right? what story begins with "once upon a time was a man called immanuel kant"? and yet - there was no such thing as french revolution there was no such thing as the russian revolution history is haunted by conspiracies there was immanuel kant whose last words are hidden in the archives of the secret services:

freedom elegance morality
